Punk-leaning Americana | Story Songs with a Pulse

GENRE: Americana / Outlaw Folk / Indie
FOR FANS OF: Robert Earl Keen, Jeff Tweedy, John Prine, Lou Reed, Justin Townes Earl

About

Lid Dixon is a singer-songwriter blending punk-leaning Americana with sharp, story-driven lyrics and a delivery that doesn't try too hard (and works better because of it). His songs wander through wide-open soundscapes—part back-road barroom, part late-night confession—with a lyrical style that rewards repeat listens.

Raised in a remote Colorado cabin without TV or radio, Dixon's early influences leaned on classic country before he later discovered the broader canon—eventually shaping a sound that nods to both traditions without fully settling into either.

Live Show

Dixon's live sets range from solo acoustic performances to full-band shows with a raw, electric edge. Expect a mix of narrative-driven songs, dry humor, and a loose, engaging delivery that connects quickly with new audiences — especially in listening rooms, small venues, and multi-stage showcase environments.

Important Financial Planning

Dixon says, "I realized that I don't need a million dollars – with $635,271 and 32 cents, I could just play music. I only need 16.3 billion streams and I'm there. Luckily, I recently released, Postcards from Baton Rouge. I already have the 32 cents, by the way."
